e "Ryecote," a half-timbered Tudor home is an :hitectural style which evolved under the Norman in- ence in England when the country was very rich timber.

From the covered portico you step on to the black te floor of the paneled foyer with open stair. The wder room to the rear of the foyer is also paneled. atured in the paneled family room with beamed ling is a fireplace of weathered edge Eden stone. ding glass doors lead from the family room onto the :k porch and the island kitchen with planning desk d walk-in pantry has a large breakfast area with ling glass doors to the patio or garden area. A living room with window seat bay window, formal dining room and laundry, which has access to the back porch, complete the first floor.

Upstairs, the very large master bedroom features a sitting area and compartmented dressing room/bath suite with dressing table vanity. Doors lead from the bedroom and dressing room onto the private sun deck. Four other bedrooms and a full bath with dressing room and double bowl vanity complete the second floor.

The "Ryecote," a distinguished home in the finest tradition, perfectly suits the needs of a large family for comfortable living and entertaining.

137A—Early American.

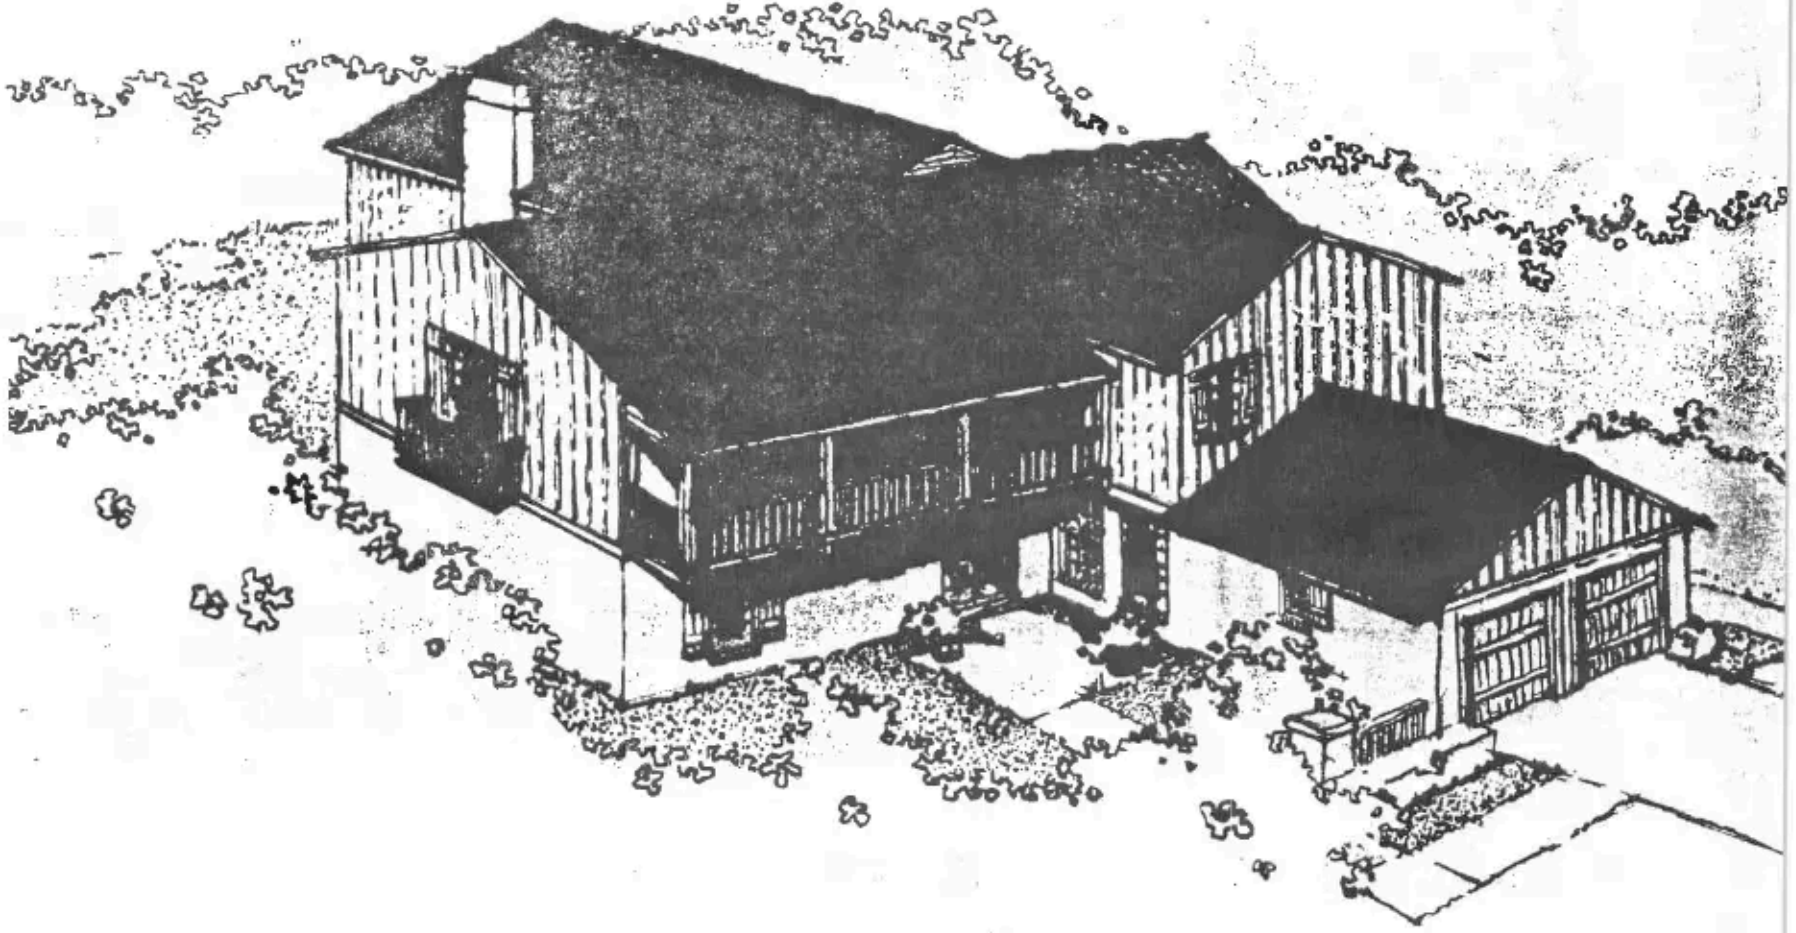

The "Vincennes," a country French ranch with hooded dormers and steep hip roof, is inspired by the architectural style that developed in the valley of the Loire and to the north of the environs of Paris. The brick and half-timbered combination resulted from an early extensive use of local materials.

From the covered portico, you step into a foyer with parquet floor that extends directly into the 21'6"x 15'4" living room. The paneled family room with rough sawn cedar beamed ceiling features a brick fireplace with bracketed wood mantle. The formal dining room has a chair rail and the efficiently planned kitchen doors to the outside patio. A laundry room and powder room are off the kitchen.

The bedrooms are ideally placed in their own wing for privacy and quiet. The master bedroom has a sitting room and luxurious private bath which features a sunken tub surrounded by mirrored walls, and twin dressing table vanities, each in their own recess. Sliding glass doors lead from both the sitting room and bath to an outside private patio, shielded by a high timbered fence. Three other bedrooms and a full bath with double bowl vanity complete the wing.

The "Vincennes," an informally designed home is

The "Monterey" architecture is a delightful blend of Spanish Colonial design (used in Monterey by the early Spanish) and New England features brought in during the Gold Rush.

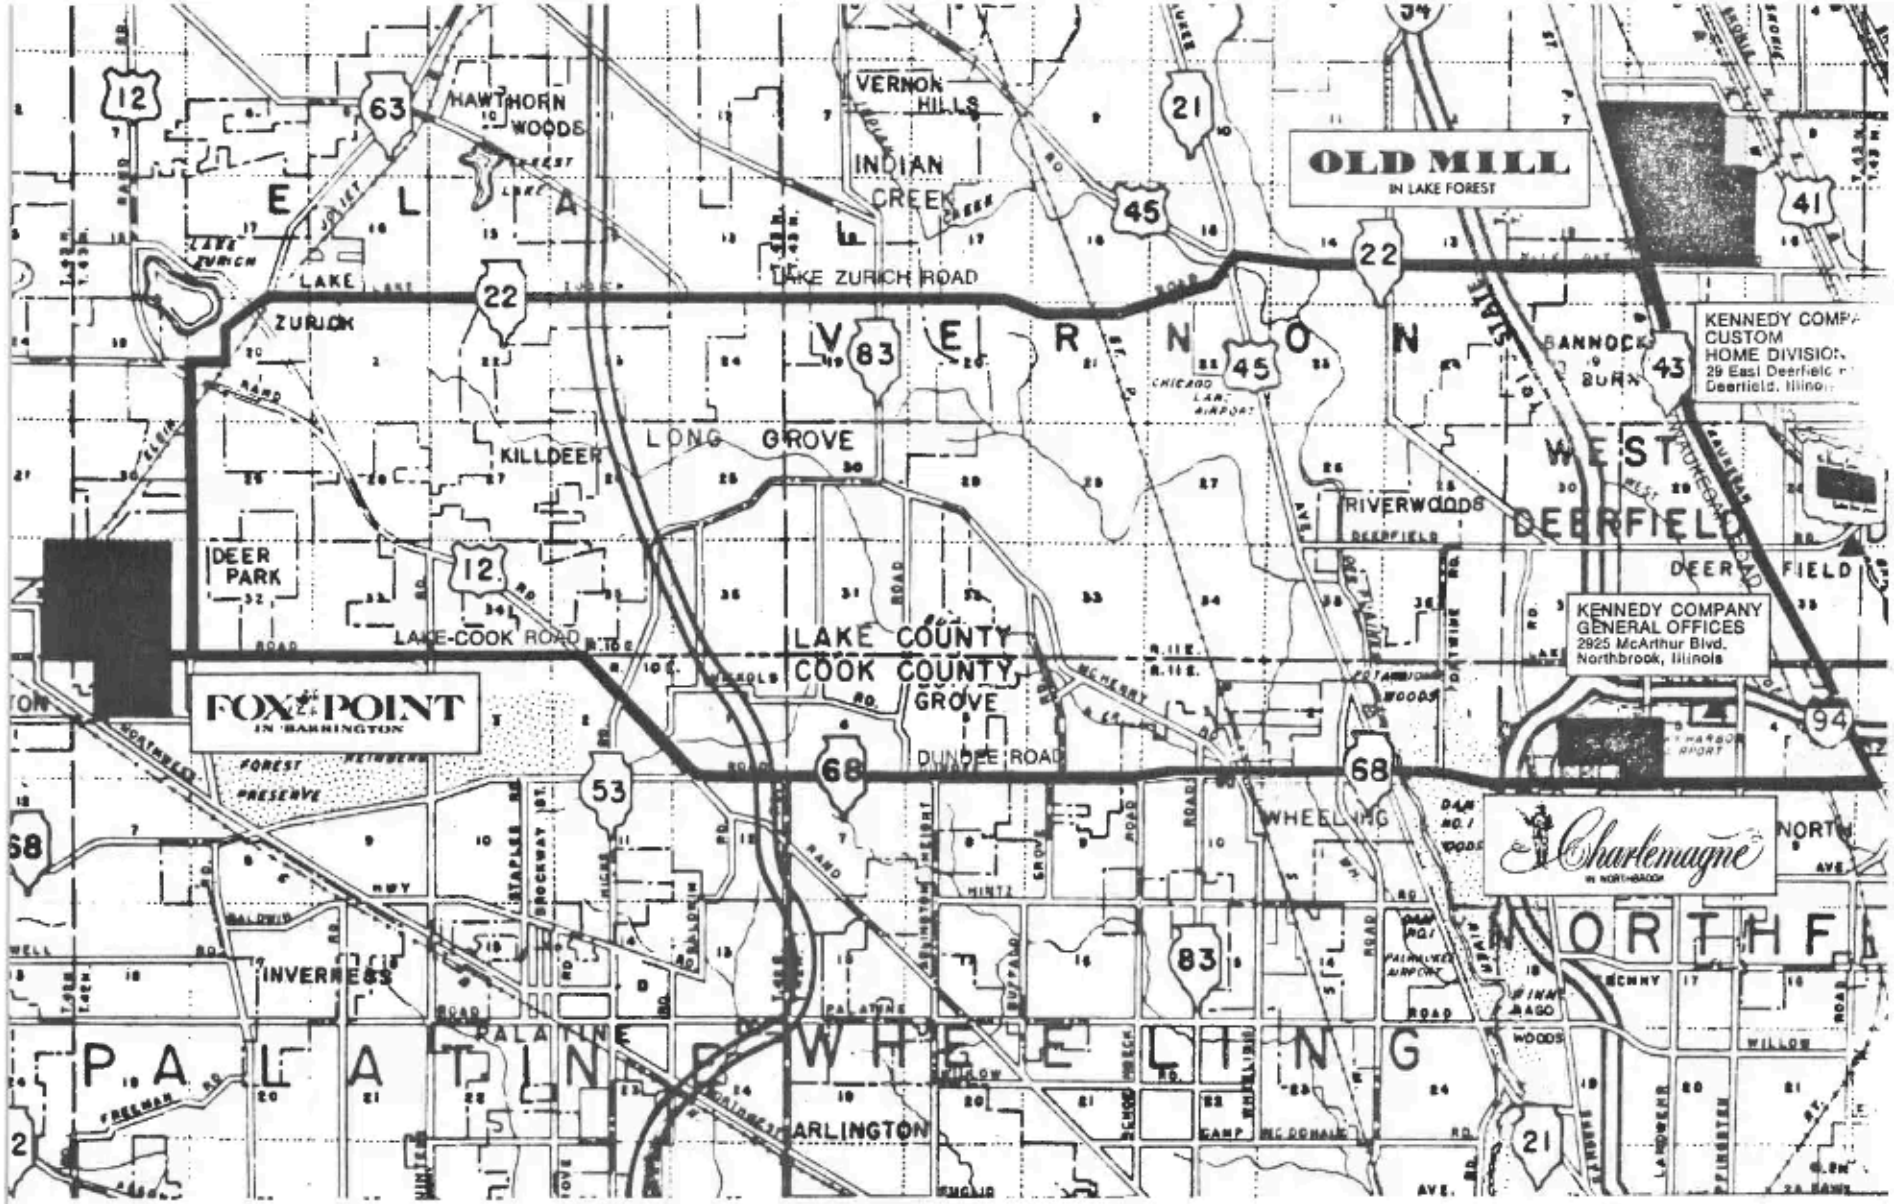

The foyer, tiled in a Spanish ceramic, is particularly impressive with its open two-story circular stair. Arches lead off the foyer, to the left to the 21'7"x15'4" living room, and to the right, to the formal dining room, which has a chair rail and crown moldings. The family room with bracketed beamed ceiling features a massive California style fireplace with rough sawn cedar mantle and double entry built-in wet bar which also opens conveniently to the kitchen. The country-style island paneled breakfast room with chair rail has sliding glass doors which lead to the back yard patio. A powder room and laundry, which leads to a walk-through storage room, complete the first floor.

Upstairs, the huge master bedroom includes two mirrored closets, a big walk-in closet and a lavish dressing room/bath suite. The compartmented bath has bracketed arches and arched mirrors over the contour tub and double bowl vanity with cultured marble ledge. Four other bedrooms and two baths complete the floor. A door from the hallway leads out onto the shaded balcony.

Two private parks reserved for the enjoyment of Fox Point families . . .

These are among the special pleasures and amenities to be enjoyed by the Fox Point home owner and his family—and in which he will share an equity interest.

Moreover, the sailing and fishing lakes, the green parks, and the club for swimming and tennis are all located inside Fox Point—not distant from it.

The Bath & Tennis Club, conveniently located at the junction of Cold Spring Road and Main Street, is two and one-half landscaped acres with something to please every member of the family.

In the center of a circular paved sunning area is the big L-shaped swimming pool, which measures 82 by 35 feet on the longer side of the L and 75 by 45 feet on the other.

For the very young members of the family, there's a fine round wading pool, safety-fenced, and a children's playground with modern play equipment.

Two tennis courts are part of the Club's facilities, and lot and adjoining snack facilities. All are linked by paved walks through the grounds.

During the season, there is a Club manager in charge. At the pool, there are guards, and swimming and water-safety instruction are available to all.

The Bath & Tennis Club, as well as the big lake and the parks in Fox Point, are supervised by the Homeowners' Association and, through that association, each homeowner has an equity interest in areas set aside for community use.

Of the two lakes in Fox Point, the larger, Lake Louise, ha an extent of 47 acres and a shore line two miles long. There an island for Lake Louise, too—Treasure Island—that offe six acres for happy exploring.

You will be able to enjoy sailboating on Lake Louise, a also fishing. The lake is stocked with bass and panfish.

Access to Lake Louise, from Sailor's Cove Park at the lake's west end that has over 300 feet of shore line, goes with every lot in Fox Point. (There is a dam here, where Lake Louise flows into Flint Creek.)

In the section of Fox Point south of Main Street is a smaller lake of three acres named Flint Pond. This water, too, is stocked with fish. Its use is limited to homeowners whose lots extend around its shore.

"Ashley"

A Kennedy-built home.

Design Style 115

Living area 3,020 square feet. Basement 1,000 square feet. Garage 450 square feet.

IF WE COULD restore the original good meaning of the Anglo-Bencati Arts Tradition, a low, one-storied home, we could apply it to this modern American residence—a house that invokes tradition and offers the best in contemporary convenience.

Certainly "Ashley" is not a small home; its three wings are filled with spaciousness, and of its four bedrooms the least in size measures 12 x 12½, not counting two double-door closets, while the largest, the master suite, includes a walk-in dressing room with no fewer than three double-sliding-door closets, custom vanity and bowl, and a private bath.

The plan of "Ashley" places the entrance at the back of the courtyard formed by the home's U shape. All the bedrooms are to the right. Straight on, through the entrance hall, is the step-down into the sunken 22-foot living room. Triple windows almost that length stage the view—of rose garden, perennial border, or sweep of lawn. The private dining room adjoins and, beyond it, the farthest distance from the bedroom wing, is the 20-foot family room with wood-burning fireplace and triple sliding glass doors onto patio or deck.

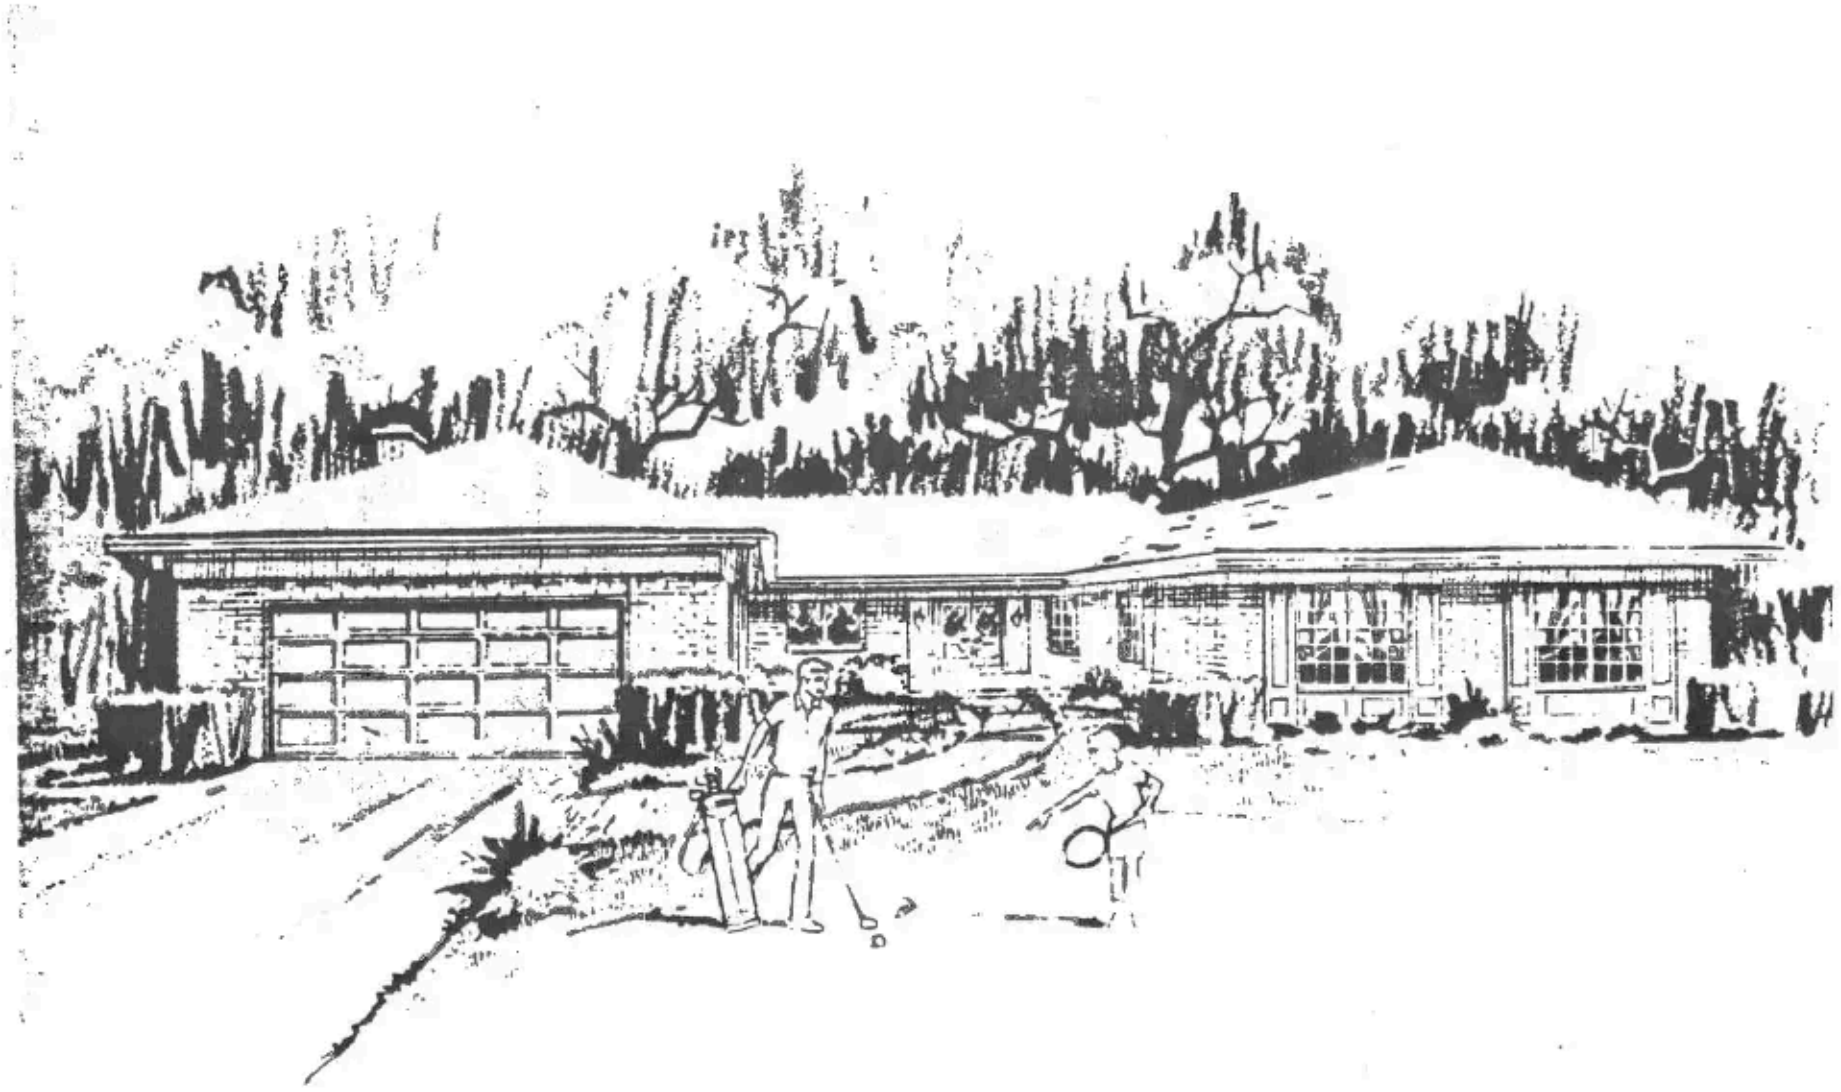

The kitchen with custom cabinets, island range, built-in appliances (and front-courtyard windows); a family eating room; laundry, and powder room—plus the two car garage—complete the plan.

"Ashley" is a proved design for living in the American way.

"Battersea" Design Style 131

A Kennedy-built fine home.

Living area: 2,702 square feet
Basement area: 1,351 square feet
Garage area: 478 square feet

The "Battersea," inspired by the architecture of the early seaboard Colonials in the Piedmont regions of Virginia and the Carolinas, has a distinctive English gambrel roof. A low rake for its upper slope and an almost vertical pitch for its lower slope is an example of the earliest gambrels found in this country.

A quarry tiled foyer provides a warm welcome to the efficiently planned home. Each room can be reached without passing through another. The wainscot paneled family room features a brick fireplace with bracketed wood mantle. Sliding glass doors lead to the back yard patio. An Early American kitchen with pantry, breakfast room with sliding glass doors, formal dining room, living room, laundry and powder room complete the first floor.

Upstairs, the light and airy master bedroom features a huge dressing room area with big walk-in closet and private bath. The three other bedrooms all have generous closet space and their mutin-barred dormer windows provide a warm and cozy atmosphere. Completing the second floor is the family bath which features a dressing room with double bowl vanity.

The "Battersea," a charming home that's reminiscent of architecture still seen in many English villages and farms, offers all the conveniences of modern day living.
